

The above map coverage includes the Sitka road system and the immediate non roaded land and island areas. These are places where people are interested in cutting Christmas trees.

Green areas above are National Forest lands open to the cutting of Christmas trees for personal use only.

White areas include National Forest lands closed to cutting Christmas trees as well as state, city, native corporation and other private lands where permission of the landowner is required.

To look for a Christmas tree on lands outside of the above coverage:

- 1) Know who the property owner is.
- 2) On state, city, native corporation or other private lands, ask permission to cut a tree from the landowner.
- 3) On National Forest lands, select a Christmas tree at least 20 feet from any road or trail and follow the guidelines under the "Selecting a Tree Section of the Christmas Tree Cutting handout attached.
